INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Visual Anthropology Review welcomes submissions relating to visual studies, broadly conceived—projects rethinking the meaning of cultural and theoretical visualization. Visual anthropology includes both the study of visual aspects of human behavior (including the anthropology of art and museology), and the use of visual media in anthropological research, representation, and teaching.

Manuscripts must be typed double-spaced, and submitted in triplicate (original and two copies) to the editor at the address below. Authorship and institutional affiliation, if any, should appear on a separate sheet. Manuscripts will not be returned to authors, and V.A.R. assumes no responsibility for their loss or injury, or for the views expressed in the articles published. If selected for publication the final revised articles must be in digital form and sent either as an email attachment or on disk. (The format of choice is Rich Text Format (.rtf) although Word and WordPerfect are acceptable. VAR uses the Windows operating system.)

References: All entries in the bibliography and filmography must be cited in the text, and all textual citations must be included in the bibliography or filmography. For style V.A.R. by and large follows the American Anthropologist. In the body of the text itself, references should be cited in parentheses, stating surname(s), year of publication, and if relevant, page number(s). The bibliography and filmography should be ordered alphabetically by surname—with the author on the first line (principal author's surname first), the date of publication on the next line, followed by the title and then the city and name of the publisher.
