Journal of Cross-Cultural Gerontology

Scope. The Journal of Cross-Cultural Gerontology is an international and interdisciplinary journal providing a forum for scholarly discussion of the aging process and the problems of the aged throughout the world. The journal emphasizes discussions of research findings, theoretical issues and applied approaches dealing with non-Western populations, but also invites articles that will provide comparative orientation to the study of the aging process in its social, economic, historical, and biological perspectives. A broad range of articles dealing with non-Western societies forms the core of this journal. Articles from the perspectives of history, anthropology, sociology, political science, psychology, population studies, health/biology, etc. will be included. A second category will include articles from Western societies comparing sub-cultural groupings or ethnic minorities such as Vietnamese, Turks, etc. Comparative studies of topics related to aging will comprise the third group of articles. Such comparative analyses could be between Western and non-Western societies or among Western societies (e.g., socialist vs capitalist societies, or societies with differing social service delivery systems).
